ABOUT THE TOPIC

The contemporary business environment is evolving at an unprecedented pace. Technological advancements, global competition, shifting market dynamics, and changing organisational structures are redefining the roles and expectations of management professionals. In this rapidly transforming landscape, academic knowledge alone is no longer sufficient. The ability to adapt, think critically, collaborate effectively, and lead through change has become essential. It focuses on equipping students with the competencies required to thrive in dynamic and uncertain environments. The seminar aims to provide clarity on the emerging skill sets that the organisations seek and how students can proactively prepare themselves while still in the academic phase.

The discussion will explore:

- How business roles are evolving across domains
- The importance of adaptability and continuous learning
- Competencies required in fast-changing workplaces
- Practical strategies for students to remain relevant and future-ready

Through expert insights and industry interaction, the seminar seeks to inspire students to move beyond traditional learning and embrace a growth mindset that enables them to lead confidently in a changing business world.
